

Ruffer Total Return International

Positive returns with low volatility

During July, the fund price rose by 0.8%. This compared with a fall of 3.6% in the FTSE All-Share Index and an increase of 0.4% in the FTSE Govt All Stocks Index (all figures total returns in sterling).

The political, economic, and societal crises rumble on. We are past the acute phase but sticking plasters mask the extent of any chronic damage. However, Sleeping Beauty, awaking from her slumber and perusing a copy of the Financial Times, might ask what all the fuss is about? Many markets have fully recovered. US stocks, sovereign bonds and investment grade credit are all now up on the year.

This has led to discussion of whether there is a 'disconnect' between the stock market and the economy. Bulls would say the market has been rational through this period as it draws a clear distinction between the best and the worst companies. Companies with pristine balance sheets are at all-time highs, those with weak balance sheets remain in the doldrums. Furthermore, the winning stocks are the ones which have benefitted from lockdown, the digital economy leaders and the predictable or subscription business models like Amazon, Peloton or Ocado.

What this implies is that investors are certain that there will be no return to perceived normality. If the market and the economy are going to come roaring back to normal in a 'v' recovery, it's unlikely to be Clorox (who make sanitiser) or Zoom who benefit most. These companies have become the new defensive assets – where investors go to feel safe. They have been highly correlated with bonds and gold. We are focusing more on recovery – Walt Disney, who can re-open their theme parks, or Aena, who operate Spanish airports.

If GDP growth picks up, the valuation premium granted to secure growth stocks becomes unwarranted. If GDP growth does not pick up then the economy is stuck in an extended slump and equities are probably the wrong asset class entirely. The latter scenario is where our portfolio protections would come into play – and we are beginning to dial these back up.

Meanwhile, the most important driver of markets in July was the emergence of US dollar weakness. The dollar index weakened by 4% providing some support to reflation and recovery. The US dollar has converged with the rest of the world at the zero lower bound and Chairman Powell has confirmed they are 'not even thinking about thinking about raising rates'.

So perhaps it is not surprising that towards the end of the month gold soared to an all time high. Silver posted its strongest month on record. These have performed strongly since we added to our precious metal positions in March (adding 1.5% in July alone). The LF Ruffer Gold Fund is up 74% for 2020. We have trimmed these equities a little, but continue to run a large exposure at around 10% of the portfolio.

The only aforementioned securities where Ruffer would currently consider holding more than 35% would be UK or US government issued transferable securities.

Investment objective

The investment objective of Ruffer Total Return International ('the fund') is to achieve positive returns with low volatility from an actively managed portfolio. The fund may have exposure to the following asset classes: cash, debt securities of any type (including government and corporate debt), equities and equity related securities and commodities (including precious metals). Pervading this objective is a fundamental philosophy of capital preservation.
